VERMONT'S JUDICIAL SYSTEM has recently been surveyed by a commission appointed by the governor. Among the leading recommendations is one for the creation of a judicial council, and a bill is offered. Another would provide pensions for judges who have served twenty consecutive years and have attained the age of seventy, the annuity being one-half the salary. It is also recommended that the constitution be amended to provide for verdicts by five-sixths of a jury. The unanimous verdict has been condemned as illogical by all prominent jurists and the departures have afforded satisfaction in a number of states.

SOUTHERN LAWYER is the name of a new quarterly journal edited by Mr. C. B. McCullar, and published at Milledgeville, Ga. The aim is to supply practitioners with a wide range of information. The first number accomplishes this and does more by presenting stories of some notable trials which should not be lost in a utilitarian age. For ripe stories, as for real eloquence, the bar of the nation must rely on the Southern lawyers.
